5 THINGS TO KN[illegible]

WELCOME TO METRO BOSTON

MATT JUUL, NATIONAL FEATURES EDITOR

Daniel Radcliffe ruffled a lot of Patriots fans' feathers with his comments about Tom Brady prior to this year's Super Bowl. While the "Harry Potter" star made it clear he was rooting for the Rams, in the back of his – and everyone else's – mind, he knew that New England would come out on top. Ahead of the premiere of his new series "Miracle Workers," we spoke with Radcliffe about how he spent his Super Bowl Sunday watching the GOAT win another ring.

Dem Klobuchar joins growing presidential field

1 U.S. Sen. Amy Klobuchar entered the 2020 presidential race on Sunday, becoming the first moderate in an increasingly crowded field of Democrats vying to challenge President Donald Trump. Klobuchar, 58, becomes the fifth senator to announce her candidacy, and the fourth woman in the chamber. The senator from Minnesota will seek to position herself as a contrast to Trump, who is expected to be the Republican candidate in the November 2020 election, focusing on both policy differences but also style and tact. "I stand before you as the granddaughter of an iron ore miner, the daughter of a teacher and a newspaperman, the first woman elected to the United States Senate from the state of Minnesota, to announce my candidacy for president of the United States," Klobuchar said.

Fairfax must resign if rape claims are true: Governor

2 Virginia's embattled governor insisted he will not resign over a racist yearbook photo, but he said the state's lieutenant governor would have to step aside if sexual assault allegations against him are found to be true. Virginia Gov. Ralph Northam was asked about allegations of sexual crimes, including rape, that have been made by two women against Lt. Gov. Justin Fairfax, a fellow Democrat and the state's second-highest elected official. Fairfax, who has denied the allegations and called for an investigation, has also faced widespread calls from Democratic leaders to step aside. "And if these accusations are determined to be true, I don't think he's going to have any other option but to resign," Northam said. Fairfax has said that encounters with both women were consensual.

Talks collapse on border deal as shutdown looms

4 Talks on border security funding collapsed after Democratic and Republican lawmakers clashed over immigrant detention policy as they worked to avert another U.S. government shutdown, a Republican senator said on Sunday. "The talks are stalled right now," Republican Sen. Richard Shelby told "Fox News Sunday." He said the impasse was over Democrats' desire to cap the number of beds in detention facilities for people who enter the country illegally. Efforts to resolve the dispute over border security funding extended into the weekend as a special congressional negotiating panel aimed to reach a deal by Monday, lawmakers and aides said. Democratic Sen. Jon Tester played down any breakdown in talks. "It is a negotiation. Negotiations seldom go smooth all the way through," he told the Fox program.

Pope denounces 'scourge' of human trafficking

5 Pope Francis urged governments on Sunday to take decisive action against the $150 billion-a-year human trafficking business and the plight of millions of modern-day slaves. Francis was addressing tens of thousands of people in St. Peter's Square two days after the Roman Catholic Church marked an annual day of prayer and awareness over human trafficking. "I appeal, particularly to governments, so that the causes of this scourge are confronted decisively and the victims are protected," the Argentine pontiff said. An estimated 45.8 million people live in some form of slavery across the world, according to the 2016 Global Slavery Index by human rights group Walk Free Foundation. Migration has become a highly-politicized issue in Europe, though the number of asylum seekers arriving in 2015 has tapered off.

Warren launches 2020 campaign, sounds note of economic equality

The Mass. senator announced her candidacy on Saturday.

Sen. Elizabeth Warren, struggling to move past criticism over her claims of Native American heritage, aimed for a fresh start on Saturday with the formal launch of her 2020 presidential campaign, saying that she is fighting for all Americans.

The Massachusetts Democrat, a leader of the party's progressive wing, made her announcement from a historic site in Lawrence — a city northwest of Boston that was once the hub of textile mills and which launched the U.S. organized labor movement.

Warren, 69, has made workers' rights, fair wages and access to health care central to her campaign.

"This is the fight of our lives. The fight to build an America where dreams are possible, an America that works for everyone," Warren said. "And that is why I stand here today: to declare that I am a candidate for president of the United States of America."

Warren is part of an increasingly crowded and diverse field of Democrats vying for the chance to challenge President Donald Trump, the likely Republican nominee.

A year before any ballots are cast in a Democratic primary, many of those candidates spent the weekend talking to voters in the early-nominating states of Iowa, New Hampshire and South Carolina.

From Lawrence, Warren went north to New Hampshire, where she held a town hall meeting in the town of Dover and repeated her call for Democrats to eschew corporate political money.

"We gotta walk the walk; if we actually believe that money has too much damn influence in Washington, then change starts right here in the Democratic presidential primary," she said.

Warren's announcement was to be followed on Sunday by U.S. Sen. Amy Klobuchar, 58, who had said she would reveal her presidential plans in her home state of Minnesota.

Warren picked up the endorsement of the Progressive Change Campaign Committee simultaneously with her launch. The group could pump millions of dollars behind her candidacy and provide an outside attack dog against her Democratic opponents.

"We believe that Elizabeth Warren is the most electable Democrat and the best person to be president," said Adam Green, the committee's co-founder.

Warren's heritage claims have dogged her since her first Senate campaign in 2012, and Trump mockingly refers to her as "Pocahontas."

"Will she run as our first Native American presidential candidate, or has she decided that after 32 years, this is not playing so well anymore?" the president tweeted on Saturday. "See you on the campaign TRAIL, Liz!"

Saudi Arabia says has 'nothing to do' with Bezos–AMI dispute

GETTY IMAGES

Saudi Arabia had "absolutely nothing to do" with the National Enquirer's reporting on an extramarital relationship involving Amazon Chief Executive Jeff Bezos, the kingdom's minister of state for foreign affairs said.

Bezos on Thursday accused American Media Inc. (AMI), the Enquirer's owner, of trying to blackmail him with the threat of publishing "intimate photos" he allegedly sent to his girlfriend unless he said in public that the U.S. tabloid's reporting on him was not politically motivated.

In a blog post, he alluded to Saudi Arabia's displeasure at the Bezos-owned Washington Post's coverage of the murder of its columnist and Saudi journalist Jamal Khashoggi.

He also referenced media reports about alleged links between AMI and Saudi Arabia.

"This is something between the two parties, we have nothing to do with it," Adel al-Jubeir told CBS' "Face the Nation" when asked if the Saudi government was involved in the Enquirer leaks.

"It sounds to me like a soap opera," he said in an interview to be aired on Sunday, excerpts of which were posted on CBS' website. Jubeir said he was not aware of any links between the Saudi government and AMI or its CEO David Pecker.

AMI said on Friday its reporting on Bezos was lawful and it would investigate his claims.

The killing of Khashoggi at the kingdom's Istanbul consulate last October strained Saudi Arabia's ties with Western allies, exposed the kingdom to possible sanctions and tarnished the image of de facto ruler Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman.

Daniel Radcliffe admits another Patriots' Super Bowl win was inevitable

The "Harry Potter" star also thinks Super Bowl LIII was a very uneventful game.

ANDREW HUSBAND
drew.husband@metro.us

Daniel Radcliffe rooted for the Rams in the Super Bowl. ABC

Unless you were boycotting this year's Super Bowl matchup between the New England Patriots and the Los Angeles Rams, then you already know that Tom Brady led his team to its sixth championship.

The celebrations in Boston are over, but that doesn't mean that diehard Pats fans are going to let the naysayers off the hook. Especially "Harry Potter" and "Miracle Workers" actor Daniel Radcliffe, who ridiculed Brady and the Pats at this year's Sundance Film Festival.

"[Tom Brady] should stop winning things," he said when asked about the game in late January. "Take that MAGA hat out of your locker."

While speaking with Metro ahead of the premiere of his new comedy series "Miracle Workers," however, Radcliffe admits that another Patriots' Super Bowl win was inevitable.

"The inevitability of a Patriots' win was with all of us, I think," he says by way of commiseration. "I'm just sorry that it happened in such a very, very sh-ty game. That was the final wound."

"The inevitability of a Patriots' win was with all of us, I think. I'm just sorry that it happened in such a very, very s—y game. That was the final wound."

Though he originally hails from London, England, Radcliffe has become a New York sports fan since taking up residence there. He is especially attached to the New York Giants, whose games he frequently attends whenever he's not working.

So even though his team wasn't a part of Super Bowl LIII, the actor couldn't stop himself from watching the big game.

"We had a big group of people over and it was a lot of fun," he says. "But yeah, there just wasn't a lot happening. I feel like the halftime show was ultimately the time when most of us were paying any attention to the TV screen."

"Miracle Workers" premieres Tuesday at 10:30 p.m. on TBS.

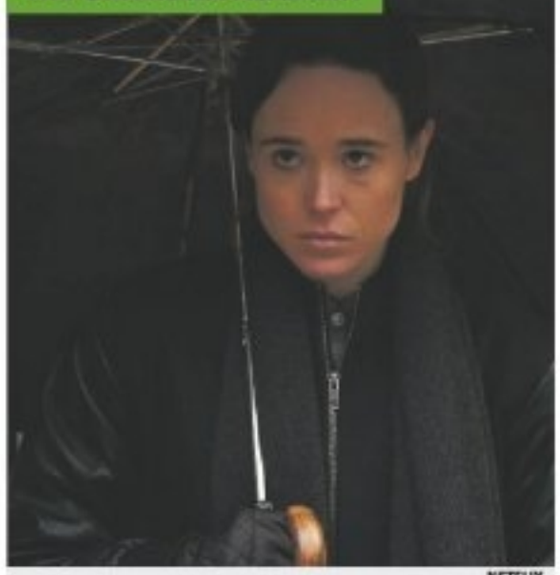
The peak winter TV season is now in full swing. Most shows with midseason breaks over the holidays have since returned to their regular programming. Meanwhile, plenty of new series and specials are about to drop. Here's what to watch on TV this week ANDREW HUSBAND

"THE UMBRELLA ACADEMY"



NETFLIX

Feb. 15 on Netflix

Based on the award-winning graphic novel series written by My Chemical Romance frontman Gerard Way, "The Umbrella Academy" follows the surviving adopted children of Sir Reginald Hargreeves (Colm Feore). Most of them are super-powered, except for Vanya (Ellen Page), and they loosely fit the definition of a "family" – even in the event of their adoptive father's death. When an apocalyptic event threatens the future of humanity, however, they must band together to stop it.

"LORENA"

Feb. 15 on Amazon Prime

In the new documentary series" Lorena," which is also produced by Jordan Peele, filmmaker Joshua Rofé argues that the Bobbitt story actually "laid the groundwork for the modern 24-hour news cycle and increasing sensationalistic media coverage" TV viewers are now accustomed to. The series also claims "the Bobbitt story was a missed opportunity for a national discussion on domestic and sexual assault in America." The series includes interviews with Lorena, John Wayne and many others.

"WEIRD CITY"

Feb. 13 on YouTube Premium

In what may sound like another ripoff of Charlie Brooker's "Black Mirror" horror anthology series, Jordan Peele and Charlies Sanders' new show "Weird City" proves itself to be something different. At least in terms of the comedy, because all the science-fiction and fantasy-esque hallmarks of the popular Netflix program are all there. Every episode takes place in Weird and explores issues that pertain to present-day life via stories that could only be told with a blend of sci-fi and comedy.

"DOOM PATROL"

Feb. 15 on DC Universe

"Doom Patrol," On the heels of "Titans," the DC Universe streaming service's first original live-action series, "Doom Patrol" spins off with the adventures of the titular gang of anti-heroes and castaways. Starring April Bowlby, Diane Guerrero, Joivan Wade, Brendan Fraser, Alan Tudyk, Timothy Dalton and Matt Bomer, the series follows the Doom Patrol members as they embark on a brand new mission to save the world.

Kyrie Irving and the Celtics might be winning, but are they contenders? GETTY IMAGES

Celtics now at a major crossroads

While the East is trending upward, the Celtics might be stuck in neutral.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Something is amiss within the Boston Celtics.

While the past four months have brought championships for the Red Sox and Patriots, Boston's NBA franchise was expected to make a serious run to the finals this season, although the dynastic Golden State Warriors stand in the way of every contender in the league.

On paper, the Celtics had one of the best rosters in a weaker Eastern Conference to start the season, as superstar point guard Kyrie Irving was complemented by the underrated Al Horford, the returning Gordon Hayward and a crop of developing youngsters including Jayson Tatum and Terry Rozier.

Things haven't necessarily gone to plan, though, as the Celtics sit in the No. 5 seed in the East despite being 14 games over .500 through 56 games.

Hayward has struggled since his return from a gruesome leg injury last season. Tatum saw his name crop up in trade talks, and Irving has made it known that he isn't ready to commit his long-term future to Boston quite yet.

In the meantime, the Celtics have failed to consistently look like the class of the East. Following a 10-1 stretch from Jan. 16–Feb. 5, Boston has lost its last two games, including a Saturday night loss to the Clippers in which the Celtics blew a 28-point lead.

"For me, it's not really about the loss, it's about the attitude that we're playing with," forward Marcus Morris told reporters after Saturday's loss. "Guys are hanging their heads. It's not fun. We're not competing at a high level. Even though we're winning, it's still not fun. I don't see the joy in the game.

"I watch all these other teams around the league and guys are up on the bench — they're jumping on the court, they're enjoying their teammates' success. They're enjoying everything, they're playing together, and they're playing to win. And when I look at us, I just see a bunch of individuals."

The outing has heaped further pressure on a team that stood pat at the league's Feb. 7 trade deadline while the other contending teams in the East reloaded for the stretch run.

The Philadelphia 76ers acquired Tobias Harris from the Clippers while the Milwaukee Bucks came away with Nikola Mirotic from the New Orleans Pelicans — the same Pelicans organization that will likely be dealing star center Anthony Davis this summer.

While the Celtics would be able to offer one of the best returns for the 25-year-old All-Star, Davis has reportedly made it clear that he is not willing to sign a long-term extension with the team and would hit the unrestricted free-agent market in 2020.

Suddenly, Danny Ainge and the Celtics are facing a summer where they could lose Irving, see Davis traded to the Los Angeles Lakers or New York Knicks, and thus try to attract big names in a loaded free-agent class that saw two of the game's biggest names shun the franchise.

The only thing the Celtics can worry about right now is winning, and if the roster lacks cohesion as Morris suggested, it could be a disastrous next few months.

The odds have changed for the C's

CITATION ON PETITION TO MODIFY BOND
G.L. c. 190B, §3-604

Docket No. SU442321

Commonwealth of Massachusetts
The Trial Court
Probate and Family Court

In the matter of: Virginia Wells
Date of Death: 08/18/1855

Suffolk Probate and Family Court
24 New Chardon Street, Boston, MA 02114
(617) 788-8300

To all interested persons: A Petition has been filed by Fiduciary Trust Company of Boston, MA AND ELIZABETH S. FLING OF GIG HARBOR, WA requesting that the Court enter a Decree and Order modifying the bond of the Personal Representative and for any other relief as requested in the Petition

You have the right to obtain a copy of the Petition from the Petitioner or at the Court. You have a right to object to this proceeding. To do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance and objection at this Court before 10:00 a.m. on 02/21/2019.

This is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline by which you must file a written appearance and objection if you object to this proceeding. If you fail to file a timely written appearance and objection followed by an Affidavit of Objections within thirty (30) days of the return day, action may be taken without further notice to you.

The estate is being administered by the Personal Representative under the Massachusetts Uniform Probate Code without supervision by the court. Inventory and accounts are not required to be filed with the Court, but recipients are entitled to notice regarding the administration from the Personal Representative and can petition the Court in any matter relating to the estate, including distribution of assets and expenses of administration.

WITNESS, Hon. Brian J. Dunn, First Justice of this Court.

Aries Look on the bright side of every situation you face. A positive attitude will help you find a solution.

Taurus Let your emotions and intuition lead the way. If you express your feelings, your suggestion will be well received.

Gemini Truth matters. Stick to the facts, and consult an expert who can get you up to speed if needed.

Cancer If someone makes a move you don't like, react intelligently. If you let anger take charge, you will lose ground.

Leo You may want change, but get the approval of those affected by your plans before you charge ahead.

Virgo Take a breather and have some fun. You'll learn much if you interact with people. Additional experience will improve your position.

Libra Listen, get ready and consider the possible obstacles. Preparation will make the difference between success and failure.

Scorpio You'll learn through experience and new things. Someone different from you will offer a suggestion that will take you by surprise.

Sagittarius You may know what you want, but how to get it will perplex you. Before you put your energy to work, have a feasible plan in place.

Capricorn Emotional matters can be dealt with. If you start a conversation and find out what others want, you'll know how to move forward.

Aquarius Look over an offer with skepticism. Trust in your ability, not in what someone else tells you or tries to coax you into doing.

Pisces Don't get angry if someone leans on you or asks for help. Consider what you can do and what you feel is fair, and strike a deal. EUGENIA LAST

PRESIDENTS' DAY WEEK

at the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum

Presidents' Day Family Festival

Monday, February 18, 2019

10:00 a.m. – 4:00 p.m.

In celebration of Presidents' Day, the Kennedy Library will host its eighth annual Family Festival. Presidential storytelling, creative activities, live musical performances as well as Museum tours and hands-on programs will bring the Library to life in new ways for all ages. Visit jfklibrary.org/PresidentsDay, for more details.

Meet and Greet Presidential Guests:

Actors portraying Presidents John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and James Madison as well as First Lady Dolley Madison will engage visitors of all ages.

Try Out Hands-on History Crafts:

- create line sculptures of presidential homes,
- design maritime scrimshaw or engineer a space helmet,
- and make tricorn hats and colonial cravats to wear to meet our guest presidents.

Attend a Free Concert:

Harvard Din & Tonics perform Kennedy campaign songs and popular music from the 1960s and today.
